Demorats and republicans all over the state are looking to Judge Morris and, Micawber like, are waiting for something new to turn up. Mr. Morris solved the conundrum yesterday. To reporters who interview him and who enquired of him if he proposed soon to begin quo warranto pro-ceedings on the gubernatorial question, Mr. Morris replied in the affirmative. Further than that he would not state, and in vain were all efforts to sound the learned judge further on this in-teresting subject. dare to shoulder. But if the senate should adjourn without making any appropriations for state expenses: it would be an open question whether Governor Bulkeley would not be justified in going ahead in co-operation with the treasurer and comptroller and paying every liability of the state that is authorized by law, Even if the comptroller held aloof the governor and treasurer could, under the circumstances, go ahead by themselves and arrange matters. But depend upon it, "he added, with an air of conviction, "the senate will pass these bills in concurrence." "the senate will pass these bills in concurrence."

Nobody can say that the house has not done its duty in regard to the appropriation bills. It has passed a resolution accepting the direct tax and another accepting the agriculture endowment act beside the usual appropriation bills and the act authorizing the comptroller and treasurer to settle all legal llabilities the amount of which are fixed by statute. The appropriations are substantially the same as those passed two years ago, with some reductions. Wherever there was a deficiency enough was added to make the amount good and wherever a surplus in the estimates was found the amount was reduced by so much.

It takes about a million dollars a year, outside of the schools and the interest on the public debt, to run the state, or an average of $85,000 a month. The school have just been paid, except the $10,000 deficiency. The interest on the debt of the state amounts to $115,000 annually, and this sum the treasurer is authorized to pay without any especial appropriation having to be made. Then it should also be remembered that the various boards concerned are empowered to borrow money for this running of the schools and the care of paupers.

Another fact that should be borne in mind is boards concerned are empowered to borrow money for this running of the schools and the care of paupers.

Another fact that should be borne in mind is that on account of the adjournment of the house with the resulting absence of legislation, no extraordinary appropriations, such as additions to normal schools, prisons, hospitals, etc., or public monuments or enterprises of various sorts, will have to be made. The money is coming right along into the treasurer's office so there will be no lack of funds if only a key may be found with which to unlock the vaults.

The insure hospital has some money of its own; but the soldiers' home, the normal schools, hospitals, agricultural schools will all need money shortly as well as the courts, prisons, and, in short, all of the judiciary departments.

It is hoped and expected that the senate will do its duty in the premises; but if it happens otherwise, then the citizens of the state will look to Governor Bulkeley and his associates in office to save the credit of Connecticut. NEW HAVEN VS. DARTMOUTH. The Home Team Wins Despite Cold endations by the Ordinance Weather and a Patched Up Nine-Condoff's Good Work in the Box.

Maven Daily

Exactly thirty-five persons, including the players, scorers and men connected with the grounds, witnessed the game at the Howard avenue grounds yesterday afternoon between the New Haven and Dartmouth clubs. The small attendance was undoubtedly due to the weather, which was anything but conducive to ball playing. The local team placed a patched up team in the field, as a glance at the score will show, but, notwithstanding this fact and the extremely cold weather, the game was a fairly interesting one. The Dartmouth team showed up in excellent form and outbatted and outfielded the home team, but was less fortunate in bunching their hits. The features of the game were the playing of Horner, Wilson and Mahoney and the batting of Forster and Lally and the pitching of Condoff for the home team, and the fielding of Baehn and Thompson, and the stick work of Abbott, Baehn and Shurtliff for the visitors.

Shaumpishuh Council's Sociable. The grand sociable of Shaumpishul council No. 3, L. of P., Improved Order of Red Men, at Sassacus armory last evening was a decided succes both socially and financially, notwithstanding the execrable weather. The music for dancing was furnished by Rosinus' full orchestra, much to the delight of the 300 or more present. The grand march was led by Mr. E. Hayes and Mrs. Horton, followed by seventy-five couples. The committee to whose exer-tions much of the success of the affair was due was composed of: E. Hayes, C. Well-man, G. Audley, W. F. Parker, J. Griffin, S. Boyle, I. Taylor.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE. The new comic opera "Influence, True Love Never Rnns Smooth," composed by J. Franklin Warner, esq., was preented at this house last evening for the first time on any stage before an audience which completely filled the spacious audiorium. Among the audience were many anagers and theatrical critics from Bos ton, New York. Philadelphia and other cities, all of whom were unanimous in their praise of the merits of this, the latest of all apirants in the operatic line, for public favor. The scene of the opera, which is in three acts and thoroughly American, is laid in New York, Washington, and the Arctic seas. The story of the and the Arctic seas. The story of the opera is new and is exceedingly well worked up, and contains many situations that are humorous and ludicrous in the extreme. The music is more than usually sparkling and bright, while the songs are lively and last evening were unusually well rendered. Particularly was this the case in the second act, when the solo of Miss eatrice Goldie was rendered with an bility which fully merited the applause with which it was received. The opera contains many bon mots. Among the specially good things which may be noted were the work of the policemen in the first set and the introduction of such won instant recognition in consequence of their good work, and the duet rendered by Miss Goldie and Mr. Peasley was honred with an encore. That there are several places in the opera which will require careful pruning was evidenced by the presentation last evening and these will be attended to at once. On the whole, however, the production can be set down as a wonderful success for an American opera by an American author.

The scenic effects are unusually grand and have been specially prepared for this production by John A. Thompson of the Hollis street theater, Boston. The most effective of all the scenes is that used in the third set which represents the third act, which represents a ship frozen in among the icebergs and surrounded with Esquimaux, after which follows the breaking up of winter and the disappearance of the icebergs. This same scene will be on exhibition at the opera house free of charge this afternoon between the hours of 2 and 4. "Influence" will be presented this and to-morrow evenings and to-morrow afternoon, after which the company goes to Pittsburg for a week, and thence to the South Broad street theater, Philadelphia, for a long run.

"Lights and Shadows," the best of Charles Gailer's dramas, will hold the

The stage picture is a very brilliant one and it is evident that the promoters of the entertainment have done everything in their power to make it a success. entertainment have done everything in their power to make it a success. The costumes are not only elegant, but are most tasteful, and this is due in a great measure to the elaborate stenoiling by Mr. Charles Schenck of this city and to Miss Lewis, daughter of ex-Mayor Lewis, to whom is due the harmonious blending of colors. This assistance was generously offered and highly appreciated. It will be strange indeed if New Haven's first attempt at Greek drama does not prove to be the theatrical event of the season.

Denman Thompson's great play of "The Denman Thompson's great play of "The Old Homestead" will be the attraction Fri-

PROCTOR'S OPERA HOUSE. The Night Owls Beauty show which songs are new and novel. It is a great improvement upon any cempany of this kind that has previously presented here this attraction Manager Manchester has added many new artists and faces to his company, and he has succeeded in gathering together a troupe that is first-class in every feature. The performance opened with a lively skit, "Our Social Club," which afforded ample opportunity for such artists as Fanny Lewis, Nettie Hoffman, Lizzie Raymond, Dave Foster and Frank Clayton to display their talent. The olio which followed was participated in by funny Sam Banard and the clever music maker, Frank Clayton. The entertainment closed with the burlesque, "Temptation," which was much better than the usual run of burlesques. Pauline Markham, who played the part of Faust, jr., although not so young as she used to be, has lost none of her charm which made her so popular years ago. The company will appear at Proctor's to-night, to-morrow afternoon and evening.

Dr. Stalker's First Lecture in Mar-quand Chapel—Audience Crowded— Words Introductory to the Course, Rev. Dr. James Stalker delivered yesterday the first of his lectures in the Lyman Beecher course to the divinity students in Marquand chapel. He is from Glasgow, Scotland. It is the first time he has been on American soil, and, as he stated, he has a warm admiration for many things American. The chapel was packed to the doors, and many were unable to get in and had to turn away, Here are a few of the things which he said: "The idea of college life is that you are here gaining the theories which you will afterward put into

The creative intellect is for the college, but for life you need the practising intellect. Of my classmates I might mention two who distinguished themselves—one (Professor Drummond) in the imagination, but the other possessed the power to sway the minds of men. Now students are criticising men. They criti-cise everybody. What a lot is said of the professors behind their backs! I fancy if many of them knew it they would be afraid to retain their positions. many of them knew it they would be afraid to retain their positions. And it is the same with clergymen and other prominent men. But the moment you leave this hall for the business of life you will pass from being the criticising to the criticised, and will have other eyes turned on you. A man is not long in public life before all sorts of faults can be found in him. But do not think I have come here to dissuade you from criticism. Men's successors have an undoubted right to criticise them, and the succeeding generation its predecesand the succeeding generation its predecessor.

"The population has been increasing fast. There is now a Protestant church for every two thousand population in Glasgow. But has the amount of practical Christianity increased in the same proportion? There is but one man in the church for every thousand. That is not Christianity that can be satisfied till the whole lump is leavened. Vice flourishes side by side with Christianity. In what direction is the same properties of the same properties of the same properties of the same properties.

side with Christianity. In what direction can we look for hope! Only in the direction of those entering the ministry. It requires men willing to sacrifice and to consecrate themselves. -We cannot do better than follow the examples of Christ and his exactles. do better than follow the examples of Christ and his apostles. Apostolic spirit is embodies mostly in St. Paul's, and that, too, not only in his life but in his writings. It is not the character or life of St. Paul that I wish to paint—you may find that in multitudes of books—but his spirit. The faculty hinted to me before I stepped on to this platform that I might do well to present the subject from a fresh point of view." [Greater laughter.] "The value of these lectures lies in what are called confession, that is, records of experience. I will finish this miscellaneous introductory lecture by this point. I believe in preaching and that it is very far behind what it might do and ought to do. I believe in it because it has the stamp of Christ. Paul said 'Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel.' Of course I recom-

preach the gospel.' Of course I recom-mend visitation of the sick, taking part in beneficent schemes, and so on—but preaching is the central thing. People say, indeed, 'Would it not be better to teach people to come to church to speak to God, and not to hear a man? But it is not to hear a man, but the voice of God. It is good to speak to God, but you should also let God speak to you. Preaching is often disparaged, because, they say the printing press has superseded the preacher. One time it did good, when books were only for the learned. But when two or three are met together in God's name, they cannot but mutually express their thoughts. It is a thing whose place no books can ever take. What, too, does the press amount to for the multitude? The world has become a far larger and more interesting one for peneficent schemes, and so on-but preach far larger and more interesting one for the common man, and this makes it far more necessary for him to know the prin-ciples of sight." The subject will be continued this after-noon at 3 o'clock. Dr. Smith Recovered. been confined to his house during the las two weeks with the grip, is now able to be out again and attend to his patients.

In the Tunnel. The New York board of railroad com missioners has withdrawn its restriction as to speed of trains in favorable weather in the Fourth avenue tunnel, New York city, upon the condition that the railroad com pany station a man at each home signal with a torpedo to put on the track when the signal is set at danger, and with instruction to go back to warn following trains should a train become stalled near the home signal, and upon the further con-dition that duplicate low signals be con-structed between the tracks so that both the engineer and fireman can see them.
